155.01 LIFELINE/LINK-UP ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

The Federal Communications Commission’s (FCC’s) Lifeline Assistance Program is a government benefit program designed to promote universal service by helping low-income individuals afford telephone service in every state, territory, commonwealth and/or Tribal lands. Lifeline Assistance allows low-income customers to receive a credit on their monthly telephone bill. The FCC Lifeline Assistance Program is supported by the federal Universal Service Fund (USF). Customers may not receive both discounts at the same time.

In addition to the Lifeline Program, the Link-Up Program is another federal benefit program that provides a discount to subscribers living on Tribal lands. The Link-Up program provides a discount that reduces the installation or activation of a wireline or wireless telephone for the primary residence.
